

Brenda Steenbakker studied French before joining Fortis Bank/MeesPierson, where she filled various service and sales positions. She then moved to BNP Paribas, one of the world's largest Corporate & Investment banks. Among her many notable achievements, she successfully established the Client Service Desk to provide a 'single point of entry' for the bank's customers. Brenda also worked in the dealing room, conducting large-scale currency and money market transactions for a number of leading multinationals. She then went on to become Relationship Manager of the International Desk, where she oversaw large loans to major business customers as well as Cash Management and Foreign Exchange services.

Based on her interest in people and organisation, Brenda decided to join Interlace as a research specialist. She is now a driven and successful consultant with specialist expertise in filling executive positions in the national and international banking and business services sectors.